MAY SALE.

OFFICE OF

MILLER & RHOADS,

Richmond, Va., May 3, 1890.

You want to be right on hand this week-prices will be wonderfully to your advantage. We begin a MAY SALE on Monday-a Festival of Bar-

This MAY SALE, which will continue every day until further notice in these columns, is the outcome of a series of special purchases made by us through a Boston syndicate trading company.

Keep an eye on this space in the Dispatch for the goods when advertised; then come to the store and satisfy yourself that we have the goods you're looking for at the lowest prices on record.

Three hundred and ninety cases of goods have been opened in our receiving-rooms within a short space of time-enough stuff to make a very merry time of it for a month.

Most of the goods advertised to-day will be shown Monday for the first

Fifteen pieces Fancy Brocade Silk, comprising all the latest shades used for combining and trimming dresses, tea-gowns, wraps, &c .- our price for this lot will be 50c, a yard, not a single shade can be duplicated-regular price 75c, to 81 a yard.

A MONSTROUS MAY MOVING.

We have before us one of the biggest tasks we ever attempted. During this month of May we will be compelled to move more than 800 Cases, comprising purchases of Dress Goods, Domestics, Linens, White Goods, Millinery, Fancy Goods, Notions, Laces, and in fact, some part of almost every kind of goods we usually have for sale. We want to move these goods from our store to your homes, even if we have to move them at a loss to us. These prices below are in force from to-morrow, Monday Morning, and if you are the least economically inclined you cannot afford to deal elsewhere during this month at least. The Fine Framed Photograph Engravings are still given away. Tickets given with every amount of goods purchased from 25c. up.
